

The classification of matter from a chemical point of view. Mixtures are separated physically into elements and compounds. Chemical reactions are required to convert elements into compounds, and vice versa.